Quality and variety have been enforced, those families that had lockers learned the real value of always having good meat and vegetables on hand. The lesson was learned in these days when the plant to time and now is the largest in the state. The most recent addition was a modern smoke house.

James P. Collins, operator of the local plant, says that 1,090 families now using the 780 lockers and 400 curing bins are putting the best quality of meats and vegetables in their lockers. When the plant opened in 1944, most users stored the general run of meats. Fifteen per cent of the customers of the plant are share croppers, about 50 per cent are farmers and the others are from Statesboro. The improvement in quality is just as pronounced in the rural group as in the urban group.

Fred Hartley, of Miami, Fla., well known and highly-esteemed minister of the Primitive Baptist denomination, will be present to do the preaching at this meeting. While in Columbus, the Georgia Jaycees outlined a program for the coming year which is an indication of the Jaycees' interest in public and civic affairs. J. Among these projects was one in which the Georgia Junior Chamber of Commerce will endeavor to take tolls out of the Georgia State Patrol and our State Sanitarium at Milledgeville, by placing these tolls in the hands of the Georgia Junior Chamber of Commerce. The State Jaycees were largely responsible for the campaign which resulted in the establishment of a State Highway Patrol in 1937. In the program for the year, the Jaycees also called for a special law enforcement school on the University of Georgia campus for highway patrolmen, police and sheriffs' officers. The program was a result of a project introduced by the Statesboro club.

City and County Sell Property

The city and county sold more than $5,600.00 worth of buildings and surplus property at the surplus property sale held Tuesday at the Statesboro airport.

All the buildings on the right hand side of the road on the cantonment area were auctioned off to the highest cash bidder. Included in the sale of buildings were stores and wooden churches, etc. The average sale price for one building was around $300.00.

The city and county recently bought from the federal government all more buildings and equipment on the cantonment area for $6,400. There are 21 buildings still left on the property and the city and county officials have voted to retain the buildings and all the equipment for various purposes. It is planned to convert the area into a municipal playground and park. It is also anticipated that the various churches, etc. they desire, may establish youth camps during the summers for youth in Bulloch county.

Two of the remaining buildings will be moved off the area and given to the Statesboro High Schools. One building will be used for a band room at the high school and the other will be moved to the football field for the players to use as a dressing and shower room.

Two-thirds of the property owners who have property on the proposed route for Rt. 80 through the city limits of Statesboro have consented to either sell or lease their land to the city, according to the city officials. They state that they only have four or five more property owners to contact in order to fully establish the status of the rights-of-way for this route. No deeds or sales of property have actually been consummated for the rights-of-way as yet. The city at the present time is merely trying to determine how much they will have to spend for the property and how much of it will be given.

Before any final action is taken a detailed set of plans of the route must be worked up by the highway officials. At the present time, six highway men are working on these plans and completion is expected at an early date.

Dodd Is Head Of District Legion

STATESBORO, Ga., April 28. — Congressman Prince H. Preston, of the First District, accused the Republicans of blocking legislation furthering the benefits of veterans, Monday afternoon in the principal address to the First District American Legion held in the auditorium of the Georgia Teachers College.

In proving his point, the congressman, himself a veteran of the Normandy invasion, named Pat Kearney, representative from New York, as the only Republican who signed a petition to raise the salary ceiling for on-the-job training program.

He further stated that a similar petition calling for the payment of terminal leave to ex-G. I.'s on a cash basis, did not bear the signature of a single Republican in the Congress.

Objective of the Republicans in their drive to defeat these measures and their intention of slicing the budget by cutting appropriations for the armed forces and the Veterans Administration, he said, was to form a substantial plank in their platform for 1948.

A former captain, who enlisted as a private, Congressman Preston cited the fact that despite pleas by Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson, the Republican party plans to maintain a budget of 22 1/2 billion dollars regardless of the nation's security.

In his closing remarks, he praised the work of John Thomas Taylor, director of the national legislative counsel of the American Legion since its formation. He said that Mr. Taylor is one of the most respected personalities on Capitol Hill.

A Verse For This Week

The conditions of life may be made healthy, so far as the physical constitution is concerned; but there is connected with the business of city so much competition, so much rivalry, so much necessity for industry that I think it is a perpetual, chronic, wholesale violation of natural law. There are ten men that can succeed in the country, where there is one that can succeed in the city.—Beecher.

Courtesy Is Attractive

Every day there are many visitors in Statesboro who are strangers to us. One day last week a stranger was in Statesboro looking for someone whom he knows, who lives here. The stranger asked a member of our police force to direct him to his friend's place of business. The policeman became very interested in the welfare of this visiting stranger. He was courteous to him. He told the visitor how to find the friend and generally made himself agreeable. We do not know which one of our police force this gentleman is, but we do congratulate him on behalf of the people of Statesboro, and urge all members of the police force to make courtesy a policy. It is only natural that a stranger and visitor in Statesboro should seek out and ask our police for directions. And so it is that in many cases the visitor forms his impressions from the contact with our policemen. Courtesy shown to visitors pays dividends.

A Sign of Progress

For a week now placards have been posted in the hotels, restaurants, drug stores and sandwich counters in Statesboro, proclaiming the degree of cleanliness of the places upon which we depend for many of our meals. It is a feeling of satisfaction to know that you are eating in a "Grade A" place. It is good to know that the place where the food you are about to eat was prepared in clean surroundings and under sanitary conditions. Mr. Jack Wheeler, the county and city health engineer, has just finished his first inspection of eating places here and has graded them according to the provisions set forth in a city ordinance which governs the operation of these places. We wish to commend the owners and operators of the hotels, restaurants, drug stores, and sandwich counters for the fine spirit in which they cooperated with the health department in making their places clean and sanitary. The health engineer states that every place inspected acted upon suggestions offered in order that it might be graded "A" or "B." One cafe closed all day in order to clean up, that it might be graded "A."

Convention City?

Could it be that Statesboro is beginning to be a convention city? It was last week. More than 350 out-of-town visitors were in our city last week, holding meetings. The Georgia Power Company held a district meeting here last Friday with more than 100 people attending. And on Saturday and Sunday the First District American Legion held its convention in Statesboro with more than 250 attendants. It is reported that many excellent comments were made by members of the delegation about our fair city. Some stated: "It's the up and coming town of South Georgia." "You have beautiful homes and lawns." "Your people are friendly." We are all proud of this. It creates good-will for the city. It's good publicity. The Statesboro civic organizations should all pull together to bring more conventions to Statesboro.

As Others Think

A temporary injunction against Sunday baseball has been granted here after a petition was filed by more than 50 prominent citizens, operating filling stations on Sunday was wrong, and so on down the line. The men who signed this petition were sincere in their objection to Sunday baseball and filed the petition because of their convictions. We see no objection to Sunday baseball in Griffin. If Sunday baseball is wrong

The Editor's Uneasy Chair

The Almanac Says the Weather This Week On... TODAY, May 1, will be cloudy and rainy. FRIDAY, May 2, will be clear and pleasant. SATURDAY, May 3, will be clear and hot. SUNDAY, May 4, will be rainy and hot. MONDAY, May 5, will be clear and pleasant. TUESDAY, May 6, will be generally clear and pleasant with local rains. WEDNESDAY, May 7, will be rainy.

... But Don't Blame Us If the Almanac Is Wrong! And speaking of paving, Route 80 is still hanging fire. Time is running out on the city officials on this project. This contract for $305,000 must be let before July 1, 1947, provided the city of Statesboro decides to cure the rights-of-way. We say, get those rights-of-way on the proposed route and let's then go to work on the Burton's Ferry route through the city. The railroad missed us. Let's don't let the highway miss us. Those parking meters to be installed in Statesboro are going to mean more to us than we realize. At first many of us will complain, but later we will see how they will pay dividends. Farmers who come to town can find places to park—and most of all, tourists who are now passing on through.

Two recent incidents in South Georgia not only illustrate the value of the program which farm leaders have been advocating for years but also points the way to a solution of a problem Georgia agriculture may face in the near future. At Arlington a woman sold four steers directly from winter pasture at a higher price than the average paid for stall-fed cattle. In Colquitt county a farmer sold $300 worth of lespedeza seed from a 15-acre tract which had been a gulch waste. He is now grazing cattle on the land.

In the war and postwar years quantity of production, rather than cost, has been the important consideration in agriculture. The world was in critical need of food and was willing to pay high prices. But once world production is restored, a decline in price is inevitable. Cost of production will then be the vital factor in successful farming. Georgia's low average yield of even and grain makes it impossible for the state as a whole to compete with the traditional grain and corn belts in those commodities. But Georgia has a distinct advantage in the production of livestock. With year-around grazing, livestock can be produced here cheaper than perhaps in any other part of the nation. Not many years ago marketing of livestock was a serious problem for Georgia farmers. But now the numerous auctions in the state furnish convenient markets. No other branch of agriculture now appears to offer so bright a future for Georgia as livestock production.

Veterans Corner

Georgia veterans of World War II are spending a lot of time in the dental chair these days and, what's more, thousands of them are getting their teeth treated by their own dentists at the expense of the Veterans Administration. Under a new VA program, 400 private dentists in Georgia are cooperating with the Veterans Administration by serving as "participating dentists" in the medical program for veterans. A former serviceman who is eligible for dental care by the government may select any participating dentist he wishes to care for his teeth if no regular VA dental clinic is convenient. Already, since the first of the year, VA has processed more than 4,000 applications for dental care for Georgia veterans. More than 80 per cent of them are getting the work done by their own dentists, according to Dr. Robert F. Wells, chief of dental service at VA's Georgia Regional Office.

Most of all, Dr. Wells says, veterans want to get their teeth filled. The second biggest demand is for dental prostheses to cure for teeth removed during the war. With the cooperation of participating dentists the dental needs of most veterans are being adequately met, Dr. Wells believes. More participating dentists are needed in isolated rural areas, and are being added as rapidly as possible with the assistance of the Georgia state dental association. In spite of his success in his many law affairs, he never gets one whom he really wants, Beatrice, whose father he proceeds to ruin financially. As a fitting climax to an unusual life, Anthony is killed by accident while helping out in a British strike. Ironically enough, he is carried to the same room where he was pronounced dead before.

The author transports his hero from the lowest slums of London to the very highest circles of international society, but whereas the slum scenes have a ring of reality about them, the society people seem very improbable. Perhaps Mr. Briffault is satirizing and making fun of them. Miss White stresses the point that the Germans haven't learned anything from the war. Those who were Nazis still believe in Hitlerism. My belief is that a 20-year occupation of Germany would be none too long. Even then how sure can we be that democratic ideals instilled in children at supervised schools, would not be mocked and destroyed by parents at home?

In this book we have a change of mood and scene, in which the action all takes place in a Pullman. Elephant Thrumm, a chemistry professor, has engaged Bedlam C from Chicago to Los Angeles, but finds it already occupied by two stowaways, (three, rather), Ann Haven, a Hollywood actress, Barbara, her precocious daughter, and their uncertainly named dog, Emperor. In the course of this hilarious narrative, there are, naturally, all sorts of complications, but eventually Ollie wins the girl and all ends well.

NON-FICTION "THE LINCOLN READER"—edited by Paul Angle. A well selected collection of articles, written for the most part by contemporaries of Lincoln and covering his whole life. "TIME TO SPEAK UP"—Jessie Haver Butler. A "must" for any woman who is ever called upon to speak in public. It covers every situation imaginable and is extremely well written. "DEAR FATHERLAND, REST QUIETLY"—Margaret Bourke-White. The story of a trip made by his arm around a girl whose brothers were responsible for all this; and who may have been trying to kill him shortly before.

The last paragraph is most significant—"We did not bring democracy to Germany, although we talked a lot about it. Even now, it is not too late, because democracy isn't something a nation does up for; it lives in its citizens. In the way they live with their fellow men. We can make up for time lost and wasted and we can give to the Germans, and others, something more than techniques. Unless we do this war will be without meaning for us."

Once again, I have had to make a choice between two very good "whodunits," and the winner is "Where There's Smoke," by Stewart Sterling. This features the New York City Fire Department and has as detective the Fire Marshal, Ben Pedley. In addition to being an excellent mystery, it will give the reader an inside view of how a big city fire department works. The runner-up is "The Sleeping Sphinx," by John Dickson Carr. Good Books Are True Friends

In the best books great men talk to us, give us their most precious thoughts, and pour their souls into ours.—Channing. By Mrs. F. F. Baker

"THE NEW LIFE OF MR. MARTIN"—Robert Briffault. This is, perhaps, the most fantastic book of the year. In good American, "It's out of this world." To begin with, the hero, Anthony Whitfield, is declared dead by a coroner's jury. This is a mistake and causes Anthony no end of trouble when he claims the estate of his dead brother. Anthony disappears, and turns up later under the name of Martin. His fortune is fabulously large, and being well acquainted with conditions in the London slums, he tries to help laborers better themselves. Later he fights certain crooked financiers, and when the Spanish Civil War occurs, he is on the side of the Republicans. He also assumes the non-descript name (you might say) of Sid Harum and, in the characterizations, builds a gorgeous palace in the Atlas Mountains of North Africa, and maintains a harem, all in the Arabian Nights tradition.

Grand Jury Presentments For April Term Court

Bulloch Superior Court: We, the Grand Jurors, chosen and sworn to serve at the April Term, 1947, Bulloch Superior Court, submit the following report: It has been called to our attention that many people have a practice of clearing fences and allowing small trees, bushes, briars, etc., to remain in the public roads and ditches of the county. It is also noticed that timber and pulpwood cutters have, in many instances, blocked our public roads and ditches with logs and pulpwood. We recommend that our law enforcement officers exercise their authority in keeping our roads and ditches clear and to make cases against parties violating the law in this respect. We recommend that Tall Mix be raised from $5.00 to $10.00 per month. We also recommend that Mrs. J. H. McElveen be raised from $7.50 to $10.00 per month. Also that Hattie Davis be paid $5.00 per month. We, the Grand Jury for this term, were well pleased with the verbal reports made by the Public Welfare worker, Miss Sara Hall, the Chairman of the Board of County Commissioners, Mr. Fred W. Hodges, and the County School Superintendent, Mr. W. E. McElveen. The Committee appointed at the October Term of Bulloch Superior Court, 1946, to inspect the Chain Gang, or Prison Camp, submit their report, and it is here attached and marked Exhibit "A."

We found 46 men in the Bulloch Public Works Camp, 34 Negroes and 12 whites; 43 sentenced by the State and 3 sentenced by the County. All men were well and on the road at work. We found all equipment to be in good condition and very little depreciation noted. We wish to commend Mr. Ellis our County Warden, for the splendid work he is doing for our County in the upkeep of our new and modern Prison Camp, and we wish to thank him for assisting us in this inspection. COMMITTEE REPORT ON COURT HOUSE AND JAIL We, the undersigned, your Committee, appointed to inspect the Court House and Jail, submit herewith our report: Court House: We have inspected the court house building and recommend that the entrance be checked with the printing contractor to see if the condition of the walls that are now cracked or peeling cannot be remedied. This is very unsightly and is not in keeping with the general appearance of the building since recent repairs were completed. It is recommended that lavatories be installed at appropriate places so that personnel of the building would have facilities for cleaning in presentable condition. Rest room facilities are from adequate and we recommend that this be given proper consideration. Leaks from the roof are apparent, particularly in the Grand Jury room and should be repaired before further damage is done. Jail: Upon checking the jail quarters we find that the prison cells are in very bad state of repair and that conditions are far from sanitary. In our opinion these quarters are not fit for human habitation. Under existing conditions it is impossible to maintain proper sanitation. No bathing facilities being provided at all, and heating and lighting facilities are far from adequate. Previous Grand Juries have recommended improvements to the jail but, in our opinion, the only solution of this situation will be new construction with modern facilities.

Respectfully submitted, W. C. COBB L. E. BRANNEN R. G. DEKLE Court House and Jail Comm.
